EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Local governments are required to compile Local Government Inventories, widely known as Municipal Inventories by provisions in the Heritage of Western Australia Act 1990. In terms of form and substance, Local Government Inventories can best be described as ‘local heritage surveys’. As such, they are common practice in WA and throughout Australia, as the foundation of sound local heritage planning.¹

They identify local heritage assets in a systematic fashion, and provide the base information needed for local heritage planning to achieve consistency, strategic direction, and community support.

It is recommended by the State Heritage Office that an inventory or inventory review is undertaken regularly in conjunction with each major review of a local planning strategy (LPS) and local town planning scheme. Inventory reviews are intended to:

- (a) ensure that the existing inventory meets the minimum standards, and to bring the findings into line with the standards if deficient.
- (b) review changes in the local heritage in the preceding period such as demolitions of places, changes in their condition, or the availability of other new information.

In 2012, the Shire of Harvey determined to undertake a review of their Municipal Inventory of Heritage Places. This was the culmination of a long programme of community consultation. This document is the result of the review process and consists of the following key elements:

- Review of the documentary and physical evidence for the places currently on the MHI;
- New documentary and physical evidence for places that have come to the attention of the Shire of Harvey predominantly through the work of the Shire of Harvey Heritage Advisory Committee which consists of Shire Officers, Councillors and community members with an interest in the history and heritage of the Shire;
- Allocation of a management category for all places (current and new) in accordance with the State Heritage Office guidelines;
- Review and update of the Thematic History and Thematic Framework for the MHI; and
- Recommendation of places for inclusion on a Heritage List which can be adopted in the Town Planning Scheme.
